Your Answer:

This was the first time I had the chance to visit the instructor's office, and I was very impressed by it. The room was quite spacious and furnished with luxurious furniture. To the left, there was a tall, long bookcase system placed against the wall. In the center of the room, there was a set of tables and chairs, including a round wooden table and two red armchairs, where the instructor could sit to read, drink tea, or receive guests. Next to that, there was a long rectangular desk equipped with essential items such as a pen set, desk pad, and lamp. The instructor could sit there to work or talk with guests. At the back of the room, there was a cabinet used for storing documents and other items. Above the cabinet hung a portrait of the instructor wearing a gold medal, with two diplomas displayed beside it. In conclusion, the room was well-furnished, spacious, and very suitable for welcoming guests or working without being disturbed by outside distractions.

Your Answer:

Last week, I had a chance to see a bedroom in my college dormitory before I move in. The bedroom was quite big for one student, which was about 20 square meter. When I stepped in the room, I could see a desk right on sight. There were a pink lamp, a laptop and speakers on it. There was also a white board hanging above the desk. I could use it to learn new words or sometimes draw on it whenever I feel bored. For me, it was an ideal place to study and do assignments effectively. Next to the desk was a wooden bed placed beside the window. There were also pillows and a comforter so that I could have a good sleep after a hard-studying day. A corkboard and bookshelves were hanged on the wall, where I could display my favorite novel collections or pin some important notes. The window of the room was very big and it also had curtain to cover when there's too much light. It gave me a feeling of a relaxed, peaceful and comfortable space. In conclusion, this bedroom was well-furnished, quite large and had everything I need of an ideal room.

Bedroom in a College Dormitory

Last month, I went to Hanoi University and started a new chapter of my life as a student. This is my bedroom in the College Dormitory, which looks small but is very cozy. On the right side, there is a bed with a soft comforter and two pillows. Next to the bed, a purple curtain covers the windows. Above the bed, you can see a bookshelf hanging on the wall with many books, which is the place I love, where I can read my favorite books. Below the shelf, there is a corkboard where I can pin my notes or reminders. On the left side of the room, there is a study desk. On the desk, there is a laptop, a lamp, and two speakers. Behind the desk, there is a whiteboard where I can write my ideas or draw something. The room is simple, but it has everything I need for studying and relaxing.

Your Answer:

Last month, I had the chance to visit my friend's bedroom in the college dormitory, and I was actually quite amazed by how many amenities he managed to organize inside such a modest space. At the back of the room, there was an enormous window that let in plenty of light, creating a lively atmosphere for the whole room. A curtain hung in front of the window, and a single bed was placed right beside it so that the student could rest. On the bed were two soft pillows and a big comforter to help him sleep comfortably when it was cold outside. Right above the bed was a corkboard where he pinned all his favorite pictures and posters, and above that were bookshelves holding dozens of books neatly organized on both shelves. To the left of the bed, near the center of the room, was the study area, which included a desk and a small table. On the table, there was a lamp for studying, a laptop in the middle, and two speakers on each side so he could play music or enjoy a good movie. Finally, a whiteboard was placed right above the table so he could do some brainstorming, writing, or even drawing. To sum up, the college dormitory bedroom was not very spacious, but it was well-organized and met all the basic needs of a student, including sleeping, studying, and entertainment.

During last week's college dormitory tour, I was shocked by how small and compact the room could be. I was pretty sure that the owner of this room was a male and a messy one, due to the unmade bed and the socks lying on the chair. In the left-hand corner of the room, there was a set of single table and chair, where the student can sit and do assignments. On the table, he placed a laptop with a pair of speakers and a lamp next to them. These were essential equipment for studying. Above the desk, hung on the wall was a whiteboard in order to write down a to-do list. Next to the study area, he set up a single bed with 2 pillows, a comforter and a blanket. Right above the bed, there was a corkboard, and on top of that was hung up bookshelves where the student stored his textbooks. It kept the room tidy and helped the student access his books right away. Next to the bed, there was a big window to lighten up the whole room. He used a curtain which is opened on one side to adjust the natural light. To conclude, even though this college dormitory was tiny and compact, it still fulfilled the basic needs and had enough space for a college student.

The bedroom in a college dormitory is small, quite messy, but suitable for a student. The first thing you can see when you enter the room is a set of wooden desk and chair. On the desk, there is a laptop, two speakers and a lamp.

Above the desk is a rectangular whiteboard, offering space to take notes and draw. There is a ball and a sock under the desk while another sock is on the chair. This is a self-study area for one student to study, surf the internet and listen to music after long, stressful hours of study. Beside the bed, there is a long bed with two pillows overlapping each other on top of it and a large comforter that spreads down to the floor. Next to the bed is a window with an open curtain which brings natural light into the room. On the wall above the bed hang two shelves filled with books. There is also a corkboard with some sticky notes right under the shelves. This makes it convenient for the student to read these notes when lying in bed. In conclusion, the bedroom is small, and quite disorganized, yet it is provided with necessary furniture for a student to study and unwind.

1. Write a paragraph of around 150-200 words to describe the place in the picture that you chose

Your Answer:

When I had an interview to cooperate with the bank, I went to the CEO's office. I was impressed by his office, which is neat, modern, and well-organized. When I opened the door, I saw a round brown coffee table with two large red armchairs where we discussed the job and the new project. I had drunk warmly delicious tea from the pitcher on that table. Under the table was an artistic rug. On the left of the room is a light yellow bookcase.

A green tree at the corner highlighted and made the office fresher. Behind the desk chair, there was a large rectangular table so that he could work and view the documents, which had a lamp, some books, and a desk pad. There is a nameplate and pen set put in the front of his seat. The office was more luxurious with a wall at the end of the office with two diplomas and a square portrait. Against the wall was a cabinet where a figurine and a photo were placed. In conclusion, this office was well-kept, tidy, and opulent, which showed its boss is a meticulous and beauty-loving person.
