

SPEAKING

UNIT 3: CULTURE & IDENTITY

Lecturer: Quynh Trang, MA.

PRONUNCIATION
VOWEL SOUNDS

Long vowel
-ɜ:-

relaxed lips, tongue and jaw

ɜ:

/ ɜ: /

	Sound 1 /ɔ:/	Sound 2 /ɜ:/
	four She's got four.	fur She's got fur.
	torn It's a torn sign.	turn It's a turn sign.
	warm I wouldn't like warm soup.	worm I wouldn't like worm soup.
	walker He's a fast walker.	worker He's a fast worker.

PRONUNCIATION The Vowel Sound /ɜr/

 The vowel sound /ɜr/ is the same as the -ir in bird. The sound is spelled in several ways.

her word hurt learn shirt

Notice how the vowel sound in each pair of words is different.

We should turn left at the corner.

You need to stir the soup.

I work in that office building.

This piece of paper is torn.

That star is bright.

Let's walk another block.

C Listen and choose the word you hear. Then work with a partner. Take turns saying one word of each pair and having your partner point to the words they hear.

- | | |
|--------------|-----------|
| 1. a. burn | b. born |
| 2. a. shirts | b. shorts |
| 3. a. hurt | b. heart |
| 4. a. bird | b. bored |
| 5. a. heard | b. hard |
| 6. a. were | b. war |

- | | |
|--------------|-----------|
| 1. a. burn | b. born |
| 2. a. shirts | b. shorts |
| 3. a. hurt | b. heart |
| 4. a. bird | b. bored |
| 5. a. heard | b. hard |
| 6. a. were | b. war |

D Work with a partner. Ask each question with one of the words in parentheses. Your partner will choose the best answer.

- | | |
|--|---|
| 1. Are you buying new (shirts / shorts)? | a. Yes, I need some with long sleeves.
b. Yes, it's too hot for long pants. |
| 2. Did you have to (work / walk) today? | a. No, today was my day off.
b. No, my friend gave me a ride. |
| 3. How much did you (learn / loan) today? | a. A lot! I need to review my notes.
b. Not much. People don't seem to need money right now. |
| 4. Did you say you (were / wore) a flower? | a. Yes, in a school play when I was five years old.
b. Yes, I wore one in my hair. |
| 5. Do you plant flowers (yearly / early)? | a. No, not every year.
b. Yes, at the beginning of spring. |

GRAMMAR FOR SPEAKING

GRAMMAR FOR SPEAKING Adjective Clauses

48

Adjective clauses describe a noun—just as adjectives do. Notice how we can combine two simple sentences to form a complex sentence by using an adjective clause.

Rosa has a horse. The horse is nine years old.

Rosa has a horse that is nine years old.

A relative pronoun replaces the noun in an adjective clause. If it replaces a subject, use who or that for people and that or which for animals or things.

subject verb

People need coordination. They perform in charreadas.

subject
pronoun verb

People who perform in charreadas need coordination.

If the relative pronoun replaces an object, use that or who (or whom in formal speech) for people and that or which for animals or things.

verb object

The hats are big. Charros wear them.

object
pronoun verb

The hats that charros wear are big.

NOTE: In object adjective clauses, the relative pronoun is often omitted or left out.

One skill (that) cowboys learn is independence.

48

B Unscramble the phrases to create sentences. There is ONE phrase you don't need in each.

1. the men / fought on horseback / who worked on ranches / worked on ranches

The men who worked on ranches fought on horseback

2. I wrote / for Mr. Azarian's class / this is the story / which I wrote it

This is the story I wrote for Mr. Azarian's class.

3. old-fashioned / the riders / wear dresses / which are old-fashioned

The riders wear dresses which are old-fashioned.

4. that I watched / the soccer match / on Saturday it was exciting / on Saturday was exciting

The soccer match that I watched on Saturday was exciting.

C Combine the sentences using an adjective clause.

1. The professor gave a lecture about intangible cultural heritage. The lecture was very popular.
The professor gave a lecture about intangible cultural heritage which/that was very popular.
2. Hard work is a value. I learned it from my parents.
Hard work is a value (that) I learned from my parents.
3. My ancestors were immigrants. They came from Ireland.
My ancestors were immigrants who/that came from Ireland.
4. Drinking tea is a tradition. Many cultures share it.
Drinking tea is a tradition (that) many cultures share.
5. Animals can represent values such as strength and wisdom. People want these values.
Animals can represent values (that) people want, such as strength and wisdom. /
Animals can represent values, such as strength and wisdom, that people want.

SPEAKING SKILL Define Unfamiliar Terms

When you use words or phrases that others might not know, it's a good idea to define them. You can define terms with be and This/It means.

It's called charrería, and it's the national sport of Mexico.

*The women ride sidesaddle. This means both legs are on one side of the horse.

Another way to define a term is with a noun and an adjective clause.

*UNESCO is an organization that works to build peace in the world.

LONG TURN

Describe something that was originally from another country but is now produced and popular in your own country.

You should say:

- What it is
- Where it was from
- What you know about it

And explain how it becomes popular locally.

French baguettes were ...,
becoming bánh mì
with pickled vegetables and herbs.

altered to suit local culture

Lecturer: Quynh Trang, MA.

A popular fashion brands introduced a ... last year, incorporating áo dài-inspired designs into its modern collection.

new version with local flair

Instant noodles, originally foreign, are ... as a quick and affordable meal option.

available in most households

Lecturer: Quynh Trang, MA.

Vietnamese versions of foreign electronics often ..., combining affordability with reliable performance.

offer better value for money

Cheese, once unfamiliar, now
... like bánh mì and hotpot, adding richness to traditional flavors.

goes well with local dishes

Lecturer: Quynh Trang, MA.

Motorbikes, despite its foreign origin, ... , allowing quick travel through crowded streets.

fit local habits perfectly

Many international coffee chains offer a ... of their drinks in Vietnam, adding condensed milk or tropical fruits to suit local preferences.

customized version

Lecturer: Quynh Trang, MA.

Egg coffee, a localized innovation, became ... and is now a tourist attraction.

a big hit in Vietnam

The bánh mì represents a ..., combining French bread-making techniques with Vietnamese herbs and pickled vegetables to create a globally recognized street food.

fusion of styles

Lecturer: Quynh Trang, MA.

Fast-food chains ... their menus ..., offering rice dishes alongside burgers and fries.

reinvented their menus
for the Vietnamese market

Compact motorbikes, adapted from foreign models, are ..., allowing quick travel through
crowded streets.

better suited for local lifestyle

Lecturer: Quynh Trang, MA.

Bubble tea ... in Vietnam, who see it as both a fashionable drink and a social activity.

appeals to young people

Foreign fast-food chains have become ... in Vietnam after tailoring menus to local tastes.

commercially successful

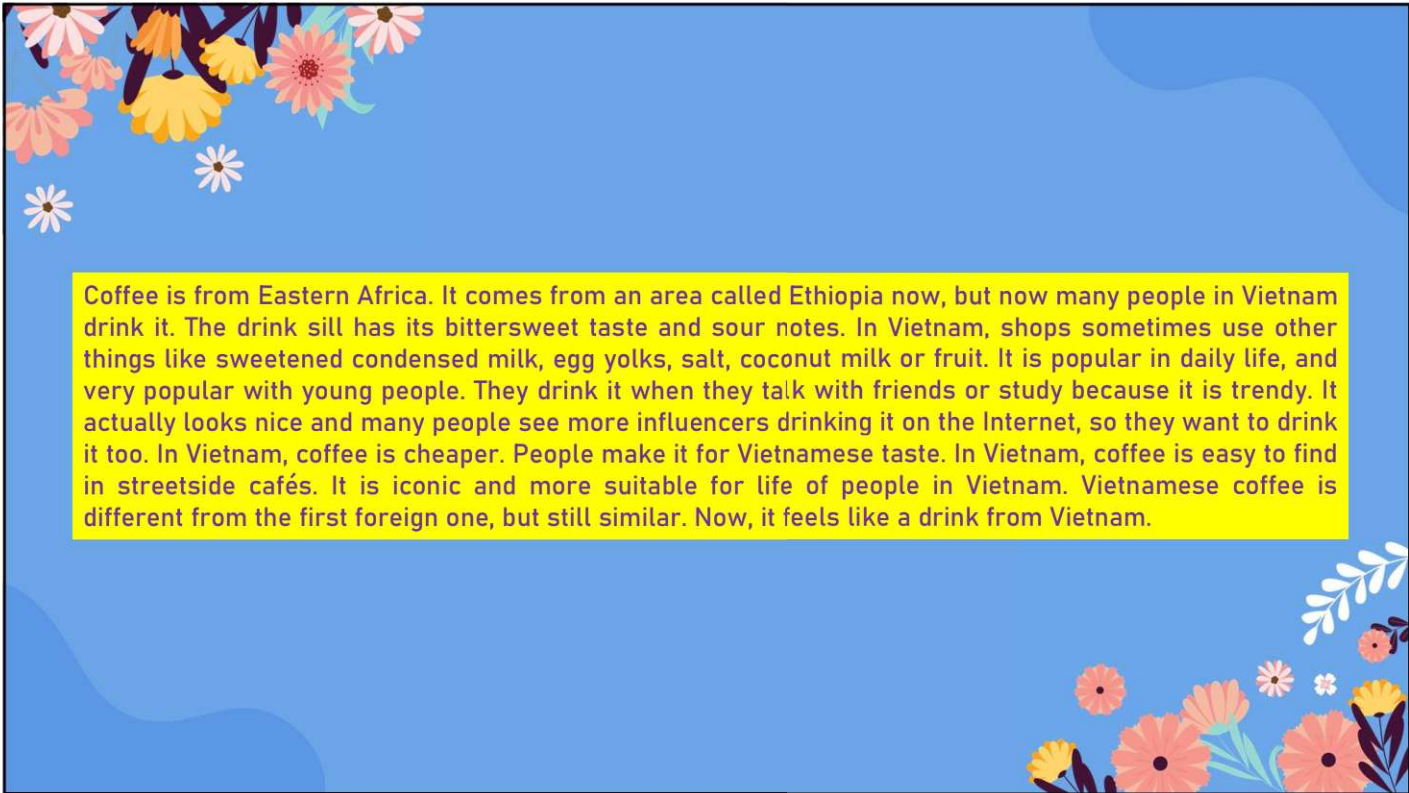

Lecturer: Quynh Trang, MA.

Drinking iced matcha
lattes is ... in Vietnam's café scene.

considered trendy

Coffee is from Eastern Africa. It comes from an area called Ethiopia now, but now many people in Vietnam drink it. The drink still has its bittersweet taste and sour notes. In Vietnam, shops sometimes use other things like sweetened condensed milk, egg yolks, salt, coconut milk or fruit. It is popular in daily life, and very popular with young people. They drink it when they talk with friends or study because it is trendy. It actually looks nice and many people see more influencers drinking it on the Internet, so they want to drink it too. In Vietnam, coffee is cheaper. People make it for Vietnamese taste. In Vietnam, coffee is easy to find in streetside cafés. It is iconic and more suitable for life of people in Vietnam. Vietnamese coffee is different from the first foreign one, but still similar. Now, it feels like a drink from Vietnam.

Lecturer: Quynh Trang, MA.

Coffee is from Eastern Africa. It comes from an area called Ethiopia now, but now many people in Vietnam drink it.

=> Coffee, which is foreign-born with its international origin in Eastern Africa in an area we know today as Ethiopia, has since become a household name in Vietnam.

The drink still has its bittersweet taste and sour notes. In Vietnam, shops sometimes use other things like sweetened condensed milk, egg yolks, salt, coconut milk or fruit.

=> Although it retains original features like its bittersweet taste blended with sour notes, many local shops have put a Vietnamese spin, using ingredients like sweetened condensed milk, egg yolks, salt, coconut milk or fruit.

Lecturer: Quynh Trang, MA.

It is popular in daily life, and very popular with young people. They drink it when they talk with friends or study because it is trendy.

=> It has been integrated into daily life, especially popular with the younger generation, who often enjoy it as a trendy refreshment while socializing or studying.

It actually looks nice and many people see more influencers drinking it on the Internet, so they want to drink it too.

=> The drink's growing popularity is largely driven by the boost given by social media influencers and the fact that it looks visually appealing.

Lecturer: Quynh Trang, MA.

In Vietnam, coffee is cheaper. People make it for Vietnamese taste. In Vietnam, coffee is easy to find in streetside cafés. It is iconic and more suitable for life of people in Vietnam.

=> Vietnamese versions are often more affordable, tailored for local tastes, and iconically served in street-side cafés with low stools, making them better suited for local lifestyle.

Vietnamese coffee is different from the first foreign one, but still similar. Now, it feels like a drink from Vietnam.

=> Over time, Vietnamese coffee has evolved into a localized version that still reflects its global roots, yet feels uniquely Vietnamese

Lecturer: Quynh Trang, MA.