GRAMMAR FOR SPEAKING

GRAMMAR FOR SPEAKING Infinitives of Purpose

Infinitives of purpose answer the question Why? We use them to express the purpose of, or reason for, an action.

In ancient times, people visited museums to discuss ideas.

To express a reason for not doing something, add not before to.

In ancient times, people visited museums to discuss ideas, not to see objects on display.

We sometimes use in order before the infinitive, especially in formal situations, to make it clear that we are expressing the purpose of the action.

In the 1700s, people began to visit ancient sites in order to find objects from the past.

A Read this summary of the history of museums. Underline the infinitives of purpose.

Museums have a long history. Over time, their purpose has changed. At first, people visited them to discuss ideas. Later, people went to see important objects there. These days, museums want to educate visitors. In order to do this, they hire experts to explain things. Some museums are also thinking about their collections in order to decide whether or not to return some especially important objects to the places they are from.

148

B Rewrite these sentences using infinitives of purpose. Compare answers with a partner.

1. The experts visited the site. They wanted to look for important or valuable objects.

The experts visited the site to look for important or valuable objects.

2. The woman went to the library because she needed to research the Rosetta Stone.

The woman went to the library to research the Rosetta Stone.

3. The family bought museum tickets. They were interested in seeing the special exhibition.

The family bought museum tickets to see the special exhibition.

4. The student hoped to learn more about ancient Egypt, so he watched a documentary.

The student watched a documentary to learn more about ancient Egypt.

5. The woman read some history books because she wanted to know more about the past.

The woman read some history books to know more about the past.

6. We preserve historical objects. We want to be sure future generations can appreciate them.

We preserve historical objects to be sure future generations can appreciate them.

C PERSONALIZE Interview a partner. Use infinitives of purpose in your answers.

1. Where was the last place you visited? Why did you go there?
2. How much was the last thing you bought? Why did you buy it?
3. When was the last time you used your phone? Why did you use it?
4. Who was the last person you contacted? Why did you contact them?

PRONUNCIATION

SENTENCE STRESS

PRONUNCIATION Sentence Stress

🔊 Speakers stress the most important words in a sentence. These are usually content words, which are words that express meaning, such as nouns, verbs, adjectives, and adverbs. In general, the final content word in a sentence is stressed slightly more than the others.

Museums have a long history. Over time, their purpose has changed.

In contrast, speakers usually don't stress function words, such as articles, prepositions, conjunctions, or helping verbs, which show grammatical relationships.

149

- D Work with a partner. Underline the content word in each sentence that you think should be stressed the most. Then take turns reading the text aloud. Possible answers:

Uxmal, Mexico, was an ancient Maya city. There are several pyramids there. One of them is called the "Pyramid of the Magician." It is the tallest pyramid at Uxmal. It took about 300 years to build. The pyramid started out small. Over the years, workers added to it several times. In total, archaeologists have found five different structures at the site.

SPEAKING SKILL

SPEAKING SKILL Summarize

Summarizing means to explain in your own words the key points about something you have heard or read. When you give a summary, do not include your opinion about the topic. Instead, include only the most important information that another person would need in order to be able to answer questions about the topic such as Who, What, When, Where, How, and Why? Be sure to organize the information in a logical way.

B Put the statements about dinosaur dig vacations in the order in which you would include the statements in a summary of these vacations. TWO statements are extra.

- a. 1 "Dinosaur dig" vacations let the public look for fossils.
- b. _____ Dinosaurs lived millions of years ago but are dead now.
- c. 3 Experts give nonscientists training before they dig.
- d. 5 Some organizations let people keep what they find.
- e. _____ The Canadian province of British Columbia is beautiful.
- f. 2 Various kinds of organizations offer these vacations.
- g. 4 Volunteers and experts both work on the same sites.

156

C Listen to a professor summarize an important discovery. Take notes as you listen. Then use your notes to write short answers to the questions.

- 1. When did William Saturno discover the first site? about 20 years ago
- 2. Why was Saturno feeling disappointed? He hadn't found anything new or exciting
- 3. Who probably made the hole that he climbed into? people who wanted to steal objects
- 4. What did he discover in the hole? a wall painting
- 5. Where was the second site, Guatemala or somewhere else? Guatemala
